Benefits for Educational Organizations

- Teaching Strategies

These courses provide educators with teaching strategies that can be integrated immediately into regular classroom instruction.

- Holistic, Research-Based Approach

Participants gain a better understanding of the core ACT tests, the research behind them, and what is assessed. A deep understanding enables educators to enhance instruction that can improve students' college readiness, and their post-high school life.

- Professional Development

Certificates are earned by the individual instructors, boosting their knowledge, skills, and confidence; ACT training may be used toward continuing education requirements. Having an ACT certified staff is a positive reflection on the school/district that supports its educators in these endeavors.

- Enhanced ACT Prep Course Instruction

Schools that provide ACT prep classes can better prepare and credential their teachers through the ACT Certified Educator program.

- In-House Test Prep Talent Pool

Schools that currently outsource test prep programs can bring them in-house with significant savings potential.

Two-day course and certifications:

- ACT subject-specific courses include the time provided to complete the assessments. Subject-specific certifications require the ACT Certified Educator Basics credential.
